

WORLD YOUTH ORGANIZATION

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to inform you all of my resignation and retirement as CEO of the World Youth Organization due to creative differences. It was not at all easy to come to such a decision, but the time has come.

It has been a good experience and I have learnt much from a personal and professional standpoint. I feel that having been one of the founders and able to run an organization aged 16-17 has taught me significant skills to use in the future. I will not deny the fact that it was extremely difficult to take this upon during some crucial years of my life but I hope to inspire and help others with my experiences.

I felt strongly about the project we were committed to. It is regrettable I will not be involved in future projects but look forward to helping others with the skills I have attained. I wish all the volunteers at World Youth Organization well. My advice to you all is to work hard and follow your dreams. Never give up fighting for something you feel strongly for.
